City of Minneapolis introduces the Legislative Information Management System

The City's new system for looking up City Council records and videos is now online. Legislative Information Management System (LIMS), which supports the City's goal of increasing accessibility and transparency in local government. Operating like many popular search engines, LIMS is designed to help the public easily track local legislation, find calendars and agendas, and get involved with the City's many public advisory boards and commissions. In addition to ease of access, LIMS helps users stay up to date on the latest actions taken by the Mayor and City Council as well as export data from LIMS into individualized search reports that can be used for private research or data visualization. You can access LIMS at lims.minneapolismn.gov.

With LIMS, you can:

- Get the agenda for upcoming City Council and committee meetings.
- Look up past and future City Council agenda items and supporting documents.
- Track individual agenda items from council introduction through final action.
- See how council members voted.
- Find and watch video of City Council and committee proceedings.

Welcome New Park Director to Logan Park: Ryan Flanders

Ryan is excited to be back in Northeast at Logan Park. His passion is working with Youth and Families and making a difference in people's lives. He enjoys meeting new people and having fun.

Ryan has been employed with Minneapolis Parks and Recreation Board (MPRB) for the past 15 years. He worked at Van Cleve Park with Rec Plus, a child care program from school-age children, and at Northeast and North Commons Parks as a Youth Outreach Specialist. He currently is employed at Corcoran Park as Park Director.

Ryan Flanders grew up in Minneapolis. He graduated from South High School and has a four-year degree from the University of Minnesota in Spanish. As a child, he played baseball and hockey at Longfellow Park. Everyday he enjoyed using the parks with his brothers and friends.

In his spare time, Ryan is active and plays baseball, swims, golfs and enjoys a good meal. Ryan is very close with his family and enjoys spending time with them, too. A fun fact, Ryan has an identical twin brother who also works for the MPRB!

In January the city received a grant from the Mississippi Watershed Management Organization (MWMO) to design and install up to $550,000 in storm water management infrastructure at our new East Side Storage & Maintenance Facility. This infrastructure will be an important piece of the many sustainability elements incorporated into the facility, which will be designed to LEED certification standards.

In October 2012 Reich joined Ward 1 stakeholders, representatives from Minneapolis Public Schools and Sundial Solar to talk about applying for a grant to do a major solar project at Edison High School. Early in January 2018, the Public Utilities Commission approved our application to install solar panels on Edison's roof and put a solar canopy over the new Edison Plaza next to the gym. It was a long wait, but work can now begin to make the Edison Green Campus even greener!

Edison's Art as Profession Class and "Change" Exhibit

Edison High School offers an Art As A Profession class for juniors and seniors, as well as arts focused sophomores, so that students can explore a variety of career paths in the arts. As part of a unique collaboration, Edison worked with local artwork services company Art Force to bring in professional artists to show their work and talk to students about career options and the business aspects of the art world. Art Force, which relocated from Plymouth to the Arts District several years ago, offers complete services from procurement to installation and conservatorship.

Students also went on field trips to local studios in the Northeast Minneapolis Arts District, museums and the U of M. They learned firsthand how to work with a client to create a work of art and to work within contract guidelines. They built portfolios and learned how to market themselves, design business cards and post professionally using social media.

Their final gallery show, which is currently on display in the media center, focuses on the concept of "Change" and features the work of 18 students. In addition to creating the works of art, they also planned the exhibit, created labels, flyers and postcards, and built the gallery walls in the Edison wood shop.
